

Spectacular photographs the focus of competition

Irvine Camera Club had their final competition night of the season last Wednesday with the judging of monochrome and colour prints by our guest judge Gill Williamson from Glasgow. Ian Mortimer was a winner on the night with his black and white portrait of "The Cavalier", and Clive Watkins took the honours in the colour section with his New York skyline shot "Empire State". A most enjoyable evening rounded off the club's competition season - the club continues to meet for the winter season every Wednesday throughout March and April. Please take a look at their website for more details, www.irvinecc.co.uk
